In an age of social connectivity we decided to ask this group of year 9 Quakers Hill High School students about their social media habits: what they use, for how long and why?

Victoria Firth

"Yes, I go on Facebook and Tumblr, too. It's like Facebook but sort of a blog where you can get pics and stuff. I only use Tumblr for pics and Facebook to talk to friends in other countries and states. I use it every day for like an hour or so. There could be other stuff to do (instead of Facebook) but you don't realise how long you have been on there."

Emily Hawkins

"I only use Facebook once every two days or so because my brothers are always on the computer. I find out stuff that they don't tell me, though, on Facebook. I talk to family and friends, boyfriends. The main reason I go on Facebook is to see who is going out with who."

Natasha Morgan

"I use Facebook whenever I can. Usually at night time. A day? Probably about two hours. (I chat) with friends that I met overseas on my holiday, work friends and cadets."

Alice Comey

"Yes (I use Facebook) very much. Too much. I should probably be concerned more about school work. You can see photos of parties and friends, and see what's going on."

Jonathan Mansour

"Probably one hour a day I use Facebook for talking to friends and catching up with people I haven't seen in a while."

Emily Chick

"I use Facebook for talking to people, looking at people's photos and stuff. I am on Facebook for too much time. I should be studying for exams instead of being on Facebook."
